County Notes

By C. M. McWilliams,
Farm Adviser.

Cape County has never been harassed for the production of alfalfa seed, but last fall Moritz Wagner of Neelys Landing harvested five shells of good seed from the fourth cutting of his alfalfa patch. Incidentally this field has been in alfalfa for the past eight years.

R. L. Fronberger, of Oak Ridge who won first on cowpeas at the National Corn Show, held at Dallas, Texas was surprised when he heard the news. A State Institute lecturer who judged the local show at Oak Ridge last fall was responsible for the pens being shown. The entire incident goes to show that often what we have is as good or better than the best and sometimes we don't appreciate the fact.

Prof. P. M. Brandt, returned to Columbia Sunday after delivering an illustrated lecture on the selection of the dairy cow at Campster School, Fruitland, Appleton, Oak Ridge and Pocahontas. He was unable to keep his engagement at New Wells because of unfavorable weather. Prof. Brandt has visited the county three times and intends to return in June and visit the clubs he was unable to reach this time. He speaks highly of the people he has met in Cape County.

When the blossoms open is the time to spray apples for the codling moth and other insects. When the blossoms open the early or blossoms end is open and the spray can get into the cavity. When the bloom falls the cavity is closed and spraying is less effectual. The most common spray is Bordeaux Mixture which is composed of four pounds of copper sulphate, four pounds of freshly burned lime and 50 gallons of water. Two pounds of arsenate of lead added to above makes it more effective for biting insects.

That the silo is rapidly coming into favor here and has proved its self to be an economic factor in feeding cattle is beyond doubt. A large number of silos will be erected the coming season. Two prominent farmers have signified their intention of constructing concrete silos. The concrete silo, if properly constructed and reinforced is permanent and the secret of success in the concrete silo is construction. For the past two or three years the Dairy Department of the College of Agriculture has sent men to superintend concrete silo building when requested, and will continue to do so in counties where there are Farm Advisers. We of Cape County can avail ourselves of this opportunity.
